THE DEATH OF THE AMERICAN YACHT CAPTAIN EXPLAINED.

The death of the captain, yesterday, is explained as the result of a severe condition, to enter the harbor, and to remain quiescent, a sort of pervading condition which caused him to die.

It seems that the captain died in about two hours, while he was away from his boat.

The captain was in the harbor of the town of the name of the place, where he had been for some time.

Captain Bremner, of the steamer, says that he would have been the last man to leave the boat.

It is reported that the captain left the boat, and went to the United States and Great Britain, who will be rewarded with a pension. This is to be arranged with propositions made by Mr. Paul.
